

Marker & Examiner Brief – Paid, Project-Based Opportunity

The English Hub · Remote · Flexible · Project-based pay (agreed up front)

In short

We're building AI-assisted marking and feedback across our whole platform — GCSE & IGCSE English (Language and Literature), KS3 English, IELTS (Academic & General Training), and EAL — and we need qualified markers and examiners to mark real student work. Your expert marks become the gold-standard reference we measure our AI against: your judgement is what makes the tool trustworthy.

It's remote, flexible, and paid per project — each piece of work is scoped and agreed with you individually before you start. You apply for the boards, levels and offerings you're qualified in; you only mark in your areas of expertise.

What we cover (mark in any area you're qualified for)

OFFERING	WHAT YOU'D MARK
GCSE English Language	Creative and analytical writing; reading-response questions — AQA, Edexcel, OCR, Eduqas
GCSE English Literature	Essay responses on set texts (Macbeth, A Christmas Carol, An Inspector Calls, Jekyll & Hyde, poetry anthologies, etc.) and unseen poetry/prose — AQA, Edexcel, OCR, Eduqas
IGCSE English	Language and Literature — Cambridge (0500 / 0990) and Edexcel IGCSE (4ET1)
KS3 English	Extended writing (narrative, argument, explanation, description) and reading comprehension against KS3 criteria
IELTS	Writing Task 1 and Task 2, Academic and General Training , on the 0–9 band scale (four criteria)
EAL	Writing and language work for English-as-an-Additional-Language learners

You don't need to cover all of these — most markers specialise in one or two. Tell us your areas and we'll match you to the right work.

What you'd be doing

You'll mark student work against the relevant mark scheme or band descriptors for your area — exactly the marking you already do as an examiner or experienced marker, captured in a clean structured form instead of on paper.

For each script, through a simple online form, you give:

- the marks or band(s) per the mark scheme / criteria for that qualification,
- a short note pointing to the evidence in the work that justifies each mark (a sentence or two),
- the overall mark or band.

Where we're calibrating a new area, some scripts will be double-marked (two markers mark the same script independently — you won't see the other's marks), and a senior marker adjudicates any significant disagreement. This is normal and expected.

What you're helping build (and why your marks matter)

We've built an AI marker for these qualifications. Before it's ever shown to a single learner, we have to prove it marks like a real examiner — that it lands close to qualified humans, reliably, for that board and level. Your marks are that human reference. We compare the AI to you; if it doesn't agree closely enough, it stays switched off for that area.

So you're not "training a machine to replace examiners" — you're the quality benchmark that holds it to an examiner's standard. Some scripts you mark will be synthetically generated (written by the system to practise across the full range, copyright-clean, with no real student's personal details). You mark them exactly as you would any real script — on what's on the page.

Who we're looking for

You'd be a great fit if you have current or recent marking/examining expertise in one or more of our areas:

- GCSE / IGCSE English — a current or recent examiner for AQA, Edexcel, OCR, Eduqas, Cambridge (0500/0990) or Edexcel IGCSE (4ET1), or an experienced English teacher who marks confidently to those boards' mark schemes;
- KS3 English — an experienced secondary English teacher fluent in KS3 assessment;
- IELTS — current or recent certified IELTS Writing examiner, or equivalent (DELTA/CELTA + substantial IELTS-prep marking to the public band descriptors);
- EAL — qualified and experienced in assessing English-as-an-Additional-Language learners.

Across all areas we look for: fluent command of the relevant mark scheme / descriptors, native or near-native English, consistency and attention to detail (your marks need to hold up against another marker's), and comfort working online and independently to a deadline.

Senior / lead examiner experience is a plus — we also need people to adjudicate occasional disagreements and write short "why this mark / why this band" exemplar notes, scoped as their own paid pieces of work.

How payment works – project-based

- Pay is per project, not a fixed per-script rate. Before you start, we agree the scope with you individually: a defined quota of scripts and/or services (for example, "mark 40 GCSE AQA Paper 1 scripts", or "double-mark a 60-essay IELTS calibration set plus 6 exemplar annotations") for an agreed fee.
- The fee is agreed up front, with you, in writing — it reflects your experience, the qualification, and the volume and complexity of the work.
- Once you're approved in the system (your credentials checked and accepted), you can pick up and mark as much as you like — but you are only paid for the quota and services agreed up front for each project. Anything beyond an agreed project isn't chargeable unless we've scoped and agreed a further project with you.
- Payment is made promptly once your completed, QA-passed work for that project is approved.

This keeps it simple and fair on both sides: you always know exactly what you'll be paid before you begin, and there are no surprises.

The process, end to end

1. Apply — tell us your credentials and which boards, levels and offerings you're qualified for, plus your availability.

2. Get approved — we verify your credentials and set you up as an approved marker in the system (with a short confidentiality/consent agreement). Your approved areas determine the work you can see.
3. Agree a project — we scope a specific piece of work with you (the quota of scripts and/or services) and agree the fee up front.
4. Get your queue — the agreed batch appears in your dashboard.
5. Mark — work through it at your own pace via the online form (marks/bands per the scheme + brief evidence notes + overall). Calibration sets are independently double-marked.
6. Quality check — significant disagreements between two markers are adjudicated by a senior examiner.
7. Get paid — once your project's marks are approved, you're paid the agreed project fee.

Approved markers can be invited to further projects over time as we expand coverage across boards and offerings.

What we ask of you

- Mark independently — to your own examiner judgement, against the mark scheme / descriptors, not to a target.
 - Be consistent — apply the same standard across every script.
 - Quote the evidence — a line or two from the work for each mark, so your judgement is auditable.
 - Confidentiality — treat the work and the materials as confidential.
 - Honesty — if a script is off-topic, under-length, or looks memorised/copied, mark it as you would in a real exam and flag it.

Important, in plain terms

- This is practice-feedback tooling, clearly distinct from any official exam — learners are told that explicitly.
 - Your marks are used to measure and improve the tool's accuracy for each qualification, never passed off as an official result.
 - We follow UK data-protection law; the scripts you mark contain no real candidate's personal details.

Reply with:

1. Your examining / marking credentials — which boards, levels and offerings you're qualified for, and when each was current;
2. Your availability over the next few weeks (rough hours/week);
3. Whether you'd be open to senior / adjudication + exemplar work.

We'll come back to confirm your approved areas and scope a first project with you.
